1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-10 and 20-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Zayat, Jr. (5,460,064). Zayat discloses an apparatus comprising a socket bit holder (note for example only, the bit at 82 in Fig 12) on which the claimed apparatus reads. Sockets of the type disclosed in Zayat incorporate pins which conform to the shape of the fasteners that the sockets drive. Accordingly, the pins of Zayat would inherently form the claimed concave end (see for example claim 1 of the instant application) if/when used with fasteners having a convex head or other appropriately shaped head (note Zayat at fig 9 for example).

The claims at bar are also obvious in view of Zayat. For example, this rejection applies to the extent Zayat is later deemed not to have a concave enough shape to meet the “concave” limitation in the claims. It would have been obvious to make the device of Zayat more effective for its intended purpose, to configure the pins of Zayat to have a cross sectional configuration (such as round) and/or to be of such quantity that they formed an end shape that was even more concave, depending on the shape of the fastener the socket was used with. See for example the other cited references. It would also have been obvious to configure the device of Zayat to incorporate known bit shapes such as those claimed, in order to increase the utility of the device.

4. Claims 1-10 and 20-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Kozak et al. (6,047,620). The claimed bit reads on an element such as 10 or portions thereof and the claimed bit holder reads on collar 22.

5. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

6. Claims 1-10 and 20-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The claims are indefinite because of the use of trademarks therein. Note the trademark "torx". Note the practice with regard to trademarks in claims. For example only, it has been held that the trademark identifies the source of the product not the product itself.

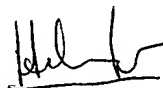

7. Consistent with the above, it is noted for completeness that claims 11-19 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on 07/20/2005.
